

STUDY DIRECTOR

Job Overview

Develop, validate and conduct standard as well as novel in vivo pharmacokinetics studies as part of a Discovery Services program for evaluating new chemical entities. Liaise with external clients in preparing protocols, reports and addressing questions and queries.

Key Responsibilities

- Develop and validate new in vivo pharmacokinetics studies
- Conduct in vivo pharmacokinetics studies with rodents
- Coordinate all in vivo studies for client studies
- Perform pharmacokinetics data analysis (experience with WinNonlin is an asset)
- Interpret data
- Generate client protocols, summary data and final reports
- Responsible for all client interaction, communication and contact
- Ensure contracts are completed and delivered on time and with high scientific and professional quality
- Manage several concurrent projects

Education, Experience and Technical Skills

- Ph.D in a related field with at least 2+ years of relevant experience or M.Sc. with at least 6+ years of relevant experience.
- Well developed computer skills

Required Soft Skills & Competencies

- Strong verbal and written communication skills in writing and defending technical reports
- Well developed analytical and problem solving skills
- Demonstrated track record and aptitude for working closely with clients
- Ability to handle a variety of assignments simultaneously
- Strong team building skills, leading study teams and working collaboratively with peers and superiors

Our client helps mold and perfect drug discovery research through a wide range of standard and specialized in vivo drug disposition studies in rats and mice. Together with their in vitro ADME assays, they offer their clients the ability to profile and shape compounds into the best candidates for clinical development. The company's research services are provided to global pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies.

Compensation is commensurate with experience, location is northwest Mississauga. The hiring process will move very quickly. Please apply in confidence to bchapman@twogreysuits.com indicating your salary expectations and you will be contacted immediately if your background closely matches the requirements as stipulated in this posting. We thank everyone for applying.

TGS Staffing Solutions is a division of Bottomline HR Inc.